The court is in receipt of the March 12, 2014, letter from potential amici. The letter states that “[t]hey understand that the Court has scheduled a vote on Google’s motion for a stay on March 18. Because the proposed amici curiae anticipate filing their briefs after that date, on March 24, they wish to bring to the Court’s attention their intent at this time.”

Counsel for amici does not explain how he received information that this court “has scheduled a vote on Google’s motion for a stay on March 18.” Counsel thus appears to be relying on information provided by sources internal to the court. That information is false.
